

BACN Announced New Board Appointment – Press Statement

Julie Charlton, a partner in the clinical risk team specialising in medical negligence, mental health and human rights law at the Bevan Brittan law firm in the City has agreed to join the BACN Board. Julie works in a variety of markets in the health arena including primary care, community health, acute and emergency commissioning and regulation and her specialty is clinical negligence and medical law.

As an expert on health and consent and working with marketform, the insurance underwriters, Julie has recently presented on issues involving consent on behalf of Hamilton Fraser – one of the BACN's Strategic Partners - and will do so at our conference in October to accompany the complications section of the day.

Sharon Bennett BACN Chair said,

'I am delighted to welcome Julie on to the BACN board. She will be able to help us in a multitude of areas including the information we put on our website, helping our members on legal issues and working with us on some major strategic matters as the sector faces many changes over the next 12 months with regard to regulation.'

This appointment reflects the growing involvement of the BACN in policy and procedural matters and in its commitment to improving services to its growing membership base'.

Julie Charlton said,

'I was delighted to be approached by the BACN to become a Board member. I was struck by the enthusiasm and energy of its Chair and CEO and the desire to move forward in such a challenging, growing and exciting sector'.

For more information Contact: Paul Burgess – BACN CEO, 0797147631